

The Best Independence

By Ian McCray Stanford 8th Grade

“OOOOHHhhh Say Can you See?” Can you? I don’t know if you can. But I sure can see it. Here is why I think we are the best at our independence.

The first thing is freedom. I think we have the most freedom. I think that because we have the most variety of people. I also think that because we have the most cultural variety. We also have the right to live free. In all, I think we have the freedom.

Next is self-determination. We all have the right to challenge or make something here in America. I think that really puts us together. I also think it differentiates us from the rest of the world.

Next is hope. I think we have the most hope because we all have the will to do something in this nation. I think that because of lemonade stands by little kids. Entrepreneurships all over.

Next is happiness. I think we have happiness in our country because we’re free to choose our lives and spend time with loved ones. There are safe places to live, and we can do fun activities like sports and entertainment. These things help keep us happy.

Finally is unity. I think we have unity in our country because people from different backgrounds work together and respect each other. We support one another in tough times and celebrate our differences. This helps us stay strong and connected as one nation.
